Velvet and plush sleeves, with a corselet to match, will be worn with plain cloth and silk waists, and plaid and striped goods will also be employed for sleeves. One of the new sleeves-the Florentine-is tight from the wrist to several inches above the elbow. The upper part is a full, deep puff, banded at the lower edge. The sleeve and the puff are very often of two contrasting fabrics and colors. The new cavaller cuff of velvet trims many of the sleeves of tallor-made costumes, and a new coat sleeve has a jabot drapery on the back of the arm from shoulder to elbow, and again is made slightly flaring at the wrists to show a tiny undersleeve in the shape of a puff. The undersleeve, to suit various dresses, is made severally of lace, net, velvet, dotted : lik tulie and In lia mull.
